JBoss, Inc. Announces JBoss World 2006 in Las Vegas

Registration, Call for Papers and Nominations for Newly Created JBoss Innovations Awards Now Open

ATLANTA, January 9, 2006—JBoss[®], Inc., the Professional Open Source company, today announced its second annual user conference and exhibition, JBoss World 2006, which will take place at the Rio Hotel and Casino in Las Vegas, Nev., June 12-15, 2006. JBoss World 2006, the highly anticipated follow-up to last year's sold-out inaugural event, will be the largest gathering of the JBoss community worldwide. JBoss users, customers and partners are invited to submit proposals for the show, as well as nominations for the newly created JBoss Innovation Awards.

"JBoss World 2006 is our way of expressing appreciation for the support and contributions of the JBoss community, including users, customers and partners who have helped make JBoss the enterprise open source middleware standard," said Marc Fleury, chairman and CEO, JBoss, Inc. "Following on the huge success of last year's event, we're stepping it up this year with a bigger show and venue, expanded tracks and the JBoss Innovation Awards, which recognize the best and most innovative applications of JBoss technology."

In the last year, JBoss confirmed its position as a leading open source company with massive gains in enterprise adoption and market share. To reflect this phenomenal growth, JBoss World 2006 has been augmented with new tracks focused on using the JBoss Enterprise Middleware Suite (JEMS[™]) in the real world, from vertical industry applications to best practices for service-oriented architectures (SOA) to key issues that developers, architects and IT executives must consider when implementing open source software.

The call for papers is also now open. As with previous JBoss World events, final sessions will be chosen by the JBoss community. To submit a session or to learn more about conference tracks, please visit www.jbossworld.com/call_for_papers.htm.

This year's show will feature the first-ever JBoss Innovation Awards which recognize JBoss users, customers and partners who stand out for improving processes, overcoming technology challenges and enhancing their bottom line through JEMS. Award winners receive complimentary passes to JBoss World 2006, where they will present their winning applications. JBoss Innovators will be honored at an awards ceremony during the conference, where the JBoss Innovator of the Year, chosen by the JBoss community, will also be unveiled.
